BRITISH STRIKE AGAIN ORDERED

Negotiations Again Break Down and Triple Alliance Fires Time For Gigantic Tie-up As 10 O'clock Friday Night—Hope Felt That Negotiations Will Be Resumed In Three Days Available.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 13.—The Triple Alliance has ordered its members to go on strike at 10 o'clock Friday night.

J. H. Thomas, executive head of the national railwaymen, made this announcement shortly before noon today. Strike orders have gone out to the railmen and transport workers to walk out at the appointed time in support of the miners who have rejected the "settlement basis" offered by the government and the mine owners yesterday.

Together with the miners, the rail men and transport workers constitute the Triple Alliance, directly controlling approximately 4,000,000 workers, besides about 1,000,000 other workers engaged in industries absolutely dependent upon the alliance, will be made jobless by the strike, so that by the end of the week the united Kingdom will see 5,000,000 workers idle.

The strike which now can be averted only by an eleventh hour backdown by one side or the other, would be the most gigantic and most complete in the history of Europe with the possible exception of the German general strike in 1918 which led to the collapse of kaiserism, and the creation of a Republic.

Thomas followed his strike announcement with the statement that "applications are being received by other unions to join the strike." These applications, he said, are being considered.

The press welcomes the fact that another three days "breathing spell" is left in which negotiations may possibly be resumed.

Railway managers do not believe there will be a strike.

At number 10 Downing street, Premier Lloyd George's secretary stated that his chief was not taking the initiative in any steps toward resumption of negotiation, though he was ready to hear any delegations offering mediation.

The new breakdown of negotiations has resulted in a revival of violence in the coal fields, today's despatches showed. If it resumes its former scale serious clashes between strikers and the troops who are now guarding the pits and collieries are regarded as inevitable.

Rioting was reported from Thornton Junction, in Fifeshire where miners drove the railway signalmen from their boxes and held up traffic for three hours. Mobs did heavy damage to rolling stock.

Looting also was indulged in Marines and sixty police were rushed to the scene in motor lorries and finally drove off the rioters.

A manifesto being circulated among the miners in South Wales says:

"Militarism has migrated from Wilhelmstrasse to Whitehall. Meanwhile the charge is being spread from the national miners' headquarters that the government has launched "war of attrition" and means to "starve out women and children."

BASKETBALL FANS "RILED."

Say Colonial Big Five Must Be Considered in County Championship.

Editor The Freeman:

Local basketball fans are "all riled up" over the announcement that Ellenville and Saugerties are to play for the county basketball championship, in the local armory April 20, when our local team, the Colonial Big Five, holding victories over the Saugerties team, are not even considered in the championships. In a spirit of fair play the locals are to be considered in any championship. So for sport's sake why not have the management of the armory book a game, between the winner of this game and the locals, for no matter who wins on April 20 the championship will be still in doubt. As the case is now fans will not have a chance to see the locals in action, so a little action will be O. K.

A KINGSTON FAN.

Every Liked As Season Starts.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, April 13—The easiest way to start an argument in Chicago today is to predict that the Cubs will not finish in the first division. Chicago fans are positive that Johnny Evers will lead his revamped Bruins to a place among the big four of the National League. The Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals will jimmy the lid off the season this afternoon if the weather does not interfere. The weather looked somewhat doubtful early today, however, and the forecast was for unsettled weather and probably showers.

The resignation of Policeman Shader will leave three vacancies on the force. The other vacancies were caused by the retirement from active duty of Policemen William Ryan and Patrick J. White. If Policeman Shader's request is granted by the police board he also will be placed on the retired list.

CREEK LOCKS BOY KILLED IN HAWAII

Jesse Hazzard Mowle, Gunner's Mate in Navy, Killed by Railroad Train at Honolulu.

JESSE HAZZARD MOWLE.

Jesse Hazzard Mowle of Creek Locks, gunner's mate, third class, in the United States navy, was killed by a railroad train at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, several days ago.

Details of the accident, or the exact time of his death, evidently have not yet been received by the government. By direction of the navy department, Chief Master-at-Arms R. C. Heggie, who is connected with the navy recruiting station, Twenty-third street, New York city, visited the young man's parents at Creek Locks, notifying them of the information received by the navy department and consulting them in regard to their wishes as to funeral arrangements. The body of Mowle will be sent to the United States by the first available government transport which sails from Honolulu and the funeral will be held at Creek Locks on arrival of the body at that place.

Mr. Mowle was a son of Calvin and Ella Mowle. At the beginning of the world war, he enlisted in the navy, being one of the first of the young men of the town of Rosendale to enlist in either branch of the United States service. He visited Russia with the United States vessel to which he was attached, and later upon his return to the United States at the close of the war was discharged from service. He re-enlisted in the navy, however, and was gunner's mate, third class. A letter received by Mrs. Mowle Tuesday morning from her son was written two weeks ago and stated he was then attached to the United States submarine base at Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

ATHENS UNDER MARTIAL LAW

Greece's Internal Situation Critical Since Overwhelming Defeat by Turkey—Throne Again "Wobbly."

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 13.—The Greek assembly today adopted a resolution declaring a state of siege in Athens, according to a dispatch from the Greek capital.

The internal situation in Greece has been increasingly critical ever since the crushing defeat of the Greek army by the Turks some ten days ago. King Constantine's throne has been reported to be again "shaky." Fresh reserves have been called up and attempts are being made to rally the Hellenic people for another offensive against Mustapha Kemal's Nationalist forces. Last reports of the military situation were extremely gloomy from the Greek standpoint, Constantine's army having been completely "rolled up" and thrown back upon the defenses near Broussa. Ex-Premier Venizelos, who was virtually exiled when Constantine returned to the throne, was reported to be hastening to Athens to aid the government in the crisis.

NO. 3 SCHOOL IS UNBEATABLE

Baseball Champs of 1919 and 1920 Trim Ambitious St. Mary's Team in Exciting Game at Hasbrouck Park—Catcher Knocked Out in First Through Bat Connecting With His Nose Comes Back in Fifth And Is Again Disabled.

Since St. Mary's baseball team defeated many of the local schools, including Schools 2, 5, 6 and 8, many of the younger baseball fans have eagerly waited until No. 3 School team, the champions of 1919 and 1920 met St. Mary's.

Tuesday afternoon the teams played a game at McVey's Field (Hasbrouck Park) and No. 3 defeated St. Mary's to the tune of 9 to 1. The field was crowded with people who had come to get a line on the probable junior champions of 1921. Every player on No. 3 as well as St. Mary's played a good game.

No. 3 have the same batteries as in 1919 and 1921, Ralph Williams, pitcher, Mufson, catcher. Williams is in fine shape this year and certainly can handle the ball as well as the bat. Mufson is right on the job also.

Kanzer is the only new man on the team. He is former catcher of the Kentwoods of Brooklyn. He plays second base with No. 3. Hutton of St. Mary's who made several home runs with the other schools, failed to do so with Williams in the box. Seager of St. Mary's made a nice shoe string catch of a hit by Williams. Long of St. Mary's, catcher, was knocked out in the first inning when he was hit by the bat in the nose. He returned in the fifth inning and was again knocked out.

The line up of School No. 3 follows: Williams, pitcher; Mufson, catcher; Millens, first base; Kanzer, second base; Lesky, third base; Stokes, short stop; Rider, left field; Wood center field, Weiner, right field.

They challenge any team in the city or vicinity, of the average age of 13 or 14; especially the Kingston High School Freshmen team. Phone school 1973 or address M. Mufson, 49 East Union street.

At the close of the Mass Dean Hickey paid an eloquent tribute to the memory of the dead hero. The boys' surpliced choir attended the services in a body and sang the Mass.

At the conclusion of the services Thomas Dolan sang "Beautiful Land on High." The services were very impressive and solemn and were largely attended. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful.

GEN. ANDREWS INSPECTS CO. D

And His Only Criticism of Kingston Boys Is That Their Work is Too Perfect—Not Trying to Make Trained Soldiers—Non-Com's Get Warrants—Personnel of Crack "First Technical Company."

General Lincoln C. Andrews, chief supervising officer of the New York State Military Training Commission, and staff made an inspection of Company D, 45th Regiment, Corps of Cadets of the State of New York, Tuesday evening at the regular drill of the company at the armory. Fully four hundred persons witnessed the drill. General Andrews was accompanied by Captain Fred Snyder, a former resident of Kingston, now with the training commission.

Company D, which is also known as the First Technical Company was the first organization to fully equip itself at its own expense. Owing to the fact that funds were not provided by the state the various organizations were not uniformed and any organization wishing to be uniformed did so at the expense of its members. The members of Company D some time ago purchased their own uniforms, a full overseas outfit.

General Andrews arrived in town Tuesday evening and was entertained at dinner at the home of Lieutenant Finch on Pearl street, arriving at the armory at 8 o'clock. The company was formed, and under the direction of Lieut. Bridges, one of the instructors, was put through a period of setting up exercises. Following the exercises the ceremony of receiving the colors under the direction of the officers of the local company was gone through and the company formed for inspection. The cadets were inspected by General Andrews.

After the inspection the company was taken over by Lieut. Finch who put the boys through a period of snappy close order drill. Although the boys have been drilling together for only a few months with instruction limited to one and one half hours a week, they have received an unusual amount of military knowledge. Every boy in the company has taken a special interest in the drills of the company and a special effort is made by each boy to learn as much as possible during the short drill periods. The work of the boys showed the careful training of the past few months.

Following the drill General Andrews presented the non-commissioned officers with their warrants.

The commissioned officers of the company are:

After the inspection was over, General Andrews commented on the work of the company as follows:

"Viewed from a purely military standpoint, the work of this cadet company is both surprising and pleasing. To think that a group of boys, most of whom have been in training for less than six months with instructions limited to one and one half hours a week, can attain the degree of precision and exactness that these boys show is more than a compliment to the American boy of today. My principal criticism of what I have just witnessed is that there would seem to be too strict a discipline maintained. They don't act enough like boys and too much like soldiers. I would have liked to see more human mistakes, for after all we are not trying to make trained soldiers of the boys under our charge but to prepare them physically, mentally and morally for better citizenship. For this reason, after the regular ceremony was over, purposely asked that the boys engage in some mass games to break up the set formality of the work and return to the usual training work as carried on at the regular formations. The point that I am criticising can well be construed as a compliment to the excellence of the military work of the company, and it may easily be that the relentless and lack of boyish light-heartedness that I am criticising was due to a natural desire to show their very creditable military knowledge to their friends and relatives who were present in full force. My word to the 'First Technical Company' is that they have a right to be proud of themselves and that Kingston has a right to be proud of them. They are a fine body of lads and my only word of advice to them is to keep on being boys just as long as they can. Don't carry the cleanliness and precision I witnessed tonight into anything but your work. You will all be men in years at least only too soon as it is."

SPEAKER PRAISES HIGH SCHOOL

To Rotarians—They Get Proof of Excellence in Culinary Department and Apple Pie Evokes Cheers.

Kingston Rotarians had proof again today that there is one branch of study in which the Kingston High School makes a 100 per cent record—that of cooking and serving a chicken dinner. The weekly luncheon was held in the high school lunch room and when the Rotarians were informed that the apple pie had been baked by the high school girls after school on Tuesday all proceedings were halted until three cheers had been given for the pie and the girls who baked it. The speaker was W. Carson Ryan, Jr., educational editor of the New York Evening Post, who complimented Kingston on its fine high school, one of the finest he had ever seen, and on the demonstration afforded by the luncheon that at least one branch of education in Kingston is on a practical basis.

Mr. Ryan urged that the newer things in education be examined to see if they are worth while and that manual training be taught in the lower grades. Nobody ever learned to drive a car by being shut up in a room and studying books. Manual training is not necessarily followed by the pupil adopting the trade in which he has received training, but it will enable him to judge the quality of goods and work that he buys. Poor workmanship, one of the great evils of the day, is largely due to poorly educated consumers.

The next Rotary meeting will be at Indian Valley Inn, Kerhonkson, Wednesday evening of next week. It will be ladies' night and all intending to go must notify William S. Eltinge on or before next Tuesday.

STATE INCOME TAX INFORMATION

New York state income taxpayers in Ulster county should file their returns with District Director J. DePuy Hasbrouck, 518 Broadway, Kingston, on or before April 15.

F. A. P.—I was mustered out of military service in August. My income between that time and the end of the year makes me taxable, but can't I take out my railroad fare from San Francisco, where I enlisted, to New York?

Ans.—No. Such expenses are personal.

E. C. H.—I am a life beneficiary under a trust and am uncertain whether I can take a deduction for depreciation?

Ans.—Life beneficiaries under wills or trust can only take depreciation (a) when the trust or will contains such a provision and (b) when such amount has actually been added to the corpus to restore the loss and deducted from the income of the beneficiary.

Seneca Falls—What is the rule in the case of stock or securities received on reorganization of corporations?

Ans.—The aggregate par or face value of the new stock or securities is taxable to the extent that it exceeds the aggregate par or face value of the stock or securities exchanged.

D. M.—My uncle had a policy of insurance directing that the proceeds on his death should be held by the company and I should receive annual interest of 3 per cent together with such additional interest as might be payable as a dividend and at my death the principal is payable to the estate. Am I taxable under these facts?

Ans.—Yes. The interest paid to a beneficiary under such circumstances is taxable income.

Exchange—Do I understand that the state income tax law now requires returns for a decedent to include income due the decedent but received after his death even though he kept no books or reported on a cash basis?

Ans.—Yes. Revised Article 542 of the comptroller's regulations so provides.

First National—How do I treat the tax of 1½ per cent which the bank pays on stock which I own?

Ans.—Disregard it. The tax is additional income because the bank pays it for you and is also a deduction as a payment for taxes.

Farmer—At harvest I had 500 bushels of oats worth $500 but when the feed market broke I only received 75 cents a bushel for them in December. 1. May I deduct this as a loss? 2. Is a lightning rod a deductible business expense?

Ans.—1. No. Losses suffered by holding crops for market are not deductible. 2. This is a capital investment and not deductible.

Doctor—I rented a business property and spent $500 in remodelling it and installing electrical connections for operating purposes. My lease was for one year. Due to ill health I was obliged to give up practice after two months. May I deduct this amount?

Ans.—Since your lease was for one year only, you may take as depreciation the entire amount.

Mack—In hauling a load of furniture from Albany to Utica my van was ditched and I had to pay $200 damages to the owner of the goods. I was not insured. May I take out this loss?

Ans.—Yes, if you are engaged in the business of trucking.

Orleans—Myself and brother are haberdashers. Our partnership suffered a loss in 1920. Do we have to file a return?

Ans.—Yes. Partnerships should file returns on form 204 even though they had no net income.

L. M. C.—I bought some bonds on an apartment building and was told that they were not taxable in New York state. Do I have to include the income from them in my return?

Ans.—Yes. The agreement of the issuing corporation was probably that it would assume any taxes to which the bonds were directly subject. As owner of the bonds you should, however, include in gross income the interest received from them.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

Child's Play Dress.

2969—This pretty model is just the thing for romping and playing. It makes an ideal, simple, home dress. The style is suitable for khaki, drill, seersucker, gingham, poplin, lawn or percale. Unbleached muslin finished with blanket stitching and with bolt and bunny in some contrasting color, would be very attractive.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8, and 10 years. Size 6 requires 2 yards of 36 inch material.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or 1c and 2c stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 15 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date spring and summer 1921 Catalogue, containing over 800 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article of dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various, simple stitches), all valuable to the home dressmaker.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE

XXX.—WISCONSIN

THE many cities in Wisconsin with French names show the French influence in its early settlement. The first white man to penetrate this region was Jean Nicollet, who was sent out in 1634 by Champlain to open trade with the Indians. He landed at Green Bay and probably traversed the country to Chicago. Fur traders and missionaries followed and the latter built a mission where Ashland now stands. This was the first church erected in the state and around it sprang up the first permanent settlement. Joliet and Father Marquette descended the Wisconsin river, and La Salle explored a great deal of Wisconsin before he took his famous trip down the Mississippi. Among the fur traders to come to Wisconsin shores was Daniel du Lhut, after whom the city of Duluth, Minn., was named.

During the Revolution Wisconsin remained loyal to the British and though Wisconsin became a part of the United States by the Treaty of Paris in 1783, it was not until 1816 that federal troops really established authority there. Indian uprisings continued for some time ending only with the Black Hawk war in 1832. Then followed extensive immigration from the New England States.

Wisconsin had formed a part of the Northwest territory until 1800, when it became a part of Michigan territory, under which jurisdiction it remained until 1836, with the exception of nine years, when it was considered a part of Illinois territory. With the admission of Michigan as a state, the Wisconsin territory was created, which included also the present states of Iowa and Minnesota and portions of North and South Dakota.

In 1846 Wisconsin was taken into the Union as the thirtieth state. Its area is 56,066 square miles and it has thirteen electoral votes for president.

The state is named after the Wisconsin river. This in an Ojibwa phrase which means "gathering waters." It is sometimes called the Badger State.

WHAT TO EAT TO PUT IRON IN YOUR BLOOD AND MAKE YOU STRONG

PHYSICIAN TELLS HOW IRON-CONTAINING VEGETABLES SUCH AS LENTILS, SPINACH, APPLES, ETC. WHEN REGULARLY TAKEN WITH ORGANIC IRON BUILD GREAT STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE.

At their own doors—in the very gardens of those who are weak, nervous and ailing all the while is one of the most valuable tonics and strength-builders known to medical science, said Dr. James Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) and the Westchester County Hospital, New York, when consulted recently.

Dr. Sullivan further said—"If your daily diet contains an abundant amount of iron you are giving your body the red blood food it craves. But if your blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery you cannot expect to be strong and well. On the contrary, your nerves become weakened and you become irritable, fussy and easily upset. In such cases, what you need is iron—organic iron to remove the cause of your trouble, and the moment organic iron is supplied it is often wonderful how quickly your multitude of symptoms will disappear and how strong and vigorous you will become." But be careful to distinguish between ordinary metallic iron which people usually take and true organic iron. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on iron filings, while organic iron is a true red blood food, like the iron in your blood itself and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. In fact if you will eat a pint or two of spinach, half a pint of lentils and three or four baked apples each day you will probably not need to take any other form of organic iron, but most people prefer to eat a smaller quantity of iron-containing vegetables and take organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, with them. It is like taking extract of beef instead of eating pounds of meat. To prove to yourself what Nuxated Iron can do for you, get your doctor to take a specimen of your blood and make a "blood count" of your red blood corpuscles, then take Nuxated Iron for a month and have a new "blood count" made and see how your red blood corpuscles have increased and how much stronger and better you feel; see how the color has come back to your cheeks, how steady and strong your nerves have become. At all druggists.

NUXATED IRON ENRICHES THE BLOOD—GIVES YOU NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

THE FARM BUREAU TEST.

The idea of making public interest the basis of appropriation of public money is new but it has worked out successfully in Ulster county, where the county's appropriation above a specified amount for the Farm and Home Bureau was made dependent on public interest as manifested by membership in the Bureau. In point of membership Ulster county has the largest Farm and Home Bureau in New York state. The Ulster county plan is a safe one for determining appropriations of this kind. The Farm and Home Bureau has proved its usefulness and necessity. The Bureau has come to stay. The taxpayer knows that for every dollar appropriated towards its maintenance he will receive full value. There are many things for which his tax money is spent for which the taxpayer sees no return, but that is not the case with the Farm and Home Bureau, whose aid enables him to increase his income and thus make the heavy tax burden lighter. The man who has money invested in an enterprise is more interested in it than the man who owns no stock. He will aid it and in turn he will derive more benefit. That is the way the Ulster county plan for using public money for the Bureau works out, the members know they must show results in order to get public aid. In making the amount of the Farm and Home Bureau appropriation dependent on the membership of the Bureau, Ulster county has led the way towards determining the public demand for enterprises whose aim is to help the public. There is plenty of room for extending the practical application of this principle. No worthy or necessary project need fear either the test or the result because fakes and falsely conceived enterprises cannot pass it and will be eliminated instead. Their elimination means greater growth and strength of the organizations which are needed and which the public demand shall receive public money because of the public benefits they bestow.

A WHOLESOME PROTEST.

The proposed law to prohibit all smoking in the executive offices of the Federal government may or may not have been intended as a first step toward a law to prohibit smoking anywhere whatsoever, but the tendencies of the times unquestionably place the latter within the bounds of possibility. In any case it is both encouraging and refreshing to find that Senator Smith of Arizona, in opposing the proposition, delivered himself in common-sense fashion as follows:

Mr. President, this is my final protest in public life against the effort of the Senate of the United States, or the Congress of the United States, to reach out its hand under various pretenses of power through the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution, or some other device, to go into the homes of the people and regulate, or attempt to regulate them all, in their conduct where that conduct, even if it is not exactly the right thing, takes no right from any one else, and leaves them at least in possession of some of the natural liberties of man.

Senator Smith further declared that the chief effect of the legislation which regulators of personal habits are now constantly urging Congress to enact, would be to "raise a generation of dudes and nincompoops." And hypocrites, and law violators by the million with ever lessening respect for all law, he might pointedly have added.

"FELLOW CITIZENS."

Whether the World War's results made the entire planet safe for democracy or not, they undoubtedly caused a perceptible forwarding of the democratic principle in many quarters. Take the recent speech from the British throne as an example. It is not so long since that uninteresting production invariably referred to "my subjects" in truly medieval fashion, yet King George's address at the opening of Parliament the other day spoke feelingly of the distress which unemployment had brought to "hundreds of our fellow citizens." The use of "fellow citizens" has been common so long in the United States and even in France that the revolutionaries of our day, scoffing at the alleged freedom of these "so called" republics, have seen fit to substitute "comrade" in its stead, but until now it has rarely if ever passed the lips of a king.

Edward VII is said to have predicted that his son now occupying the throne would be the last king to be seen in England, but naturally King George would prefer the expected revolution to be still further delayed so that his son, that nice young man, the present Prince of Wales, may have his chance to don the purple in turn and see what he can do to keep the old order going. So King George, reading the signs of the times, would seem to wish to accommodate himself to the newer spirit moving among the people. Such at least appears to be the explanation of his substitution of "fellow citizens" for "my subjects," a departure from precedent that would have infuriated the earlier Georges and greatly disturbed even that estimable old lady, Queen Victoria.

O. E. S. DISTRICT OFFICERS

Received at Cairo by Record Attendance.

Cairo, April 13.—Cairo Chapter No. 380, Order of the Eastern Star, entertained the grand officers of the 11th Eastern Star district last Saturday evening and not since the dedication of the Masonic Temple has its lodge room contained such a large crowd. They were literally "packed in." Every chapter in the district but two had a large representation. The district deputy grand matron, Mrs. Nellie Sawyer, of Ellenville, and Assistant Grand Lecturer Joseph Frankel of Saugerties were introduced very pleasingly by Past Matron Mrs. Carrie Bogardus and also heartily welcomed by the worthy matron, Mrs. Anna Haines. The Star Degrees were conferred on Mrs. Holmes in the usual fine manner for which Cairo Chapter officers are noted. After the work came the addresses of the visiting officers and Mrs. Sawyer, who has already made a splendid impression wherever she has spoken in the district, added new lustre to her ability as a capable and forceful speaker, and her address on "Fraternalism" was received with strong approval. Mr. Frankel spoke on "Secrecy," and he had everybody in laughter with the stories he told prefacing his address. Besides a beautiful cluster bouquet of carnations, Mrs. Sawyer was presented with a handsome toilet set, Mrs. Bogardus presenting the gift in which she told Mrs. Sawyer that her message has been a great inspiration to all.

Past Patron Herbert Bogardus presented the gift of a Thermos bottle to Mr. Frankel, in which he said: "Brother Frankel, you are so well known to members of Cairo Chapter through your numerous visits here that we almost claim you as one of our own, and this large crowd here is just as though it were a home-coming for you."

A delicious banquet was served in the hall down stairs, the tables being beautifully lighted with candles. This banquet was in charge of Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Story and it was delightful throughout, bringing to a close a wonderful meeting for all present.

To Pitch For Red Hook.

"Kid" Taylor of this city has signed with Red Hook for the coming season and expects to play the first game with Poughkeepsie Sunday, April 24. He has been playing base ball with the Red Hook team for two seasons and has pitched every game for them. He has won twelve out of fifteen games last season and also did some fine pitching for some teams of this city. "Kid" Taylor is the southpaw who twirled for Co. M the night they won their only game of the Twilight League scores, defeating the fast Ulster and Delaware team by a score of 6 to 4.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

PEOPLE HOLD GOV'T SECURITIES

Only Ten Per Cent in Hands of Banks Say Federal Officials—Best "Buy" in Fifty Years.

Nearly ninety per cent of the outstanding bonds and certificates issued by the government to finance the war are now in the hands of the public, according to a statement given out by the government loan organization of the Second Federal Reserve District. The statement shows that on December 29, 1920, the latest date for which figures are available, approximately $20,431,777,000 par value of war issues were being held by individuals and corporations. The public holds 89.4 per cent of the total issues of $22,861,341,000 outstanding.

Banking institutions, at the close of 1920, were holding about 10.6 per cent of outstanding securities as compared with bank holdings of about 17.7 per cent on June 30, 1919, of the then outstanding amount. These figures will be regarded as significant by the business and banking communities inasmuch as they indicate that during the eighteen months period from June 30, 1919 to December 29, 1920, a net amount of over $1,000,000,000 war securities passed from the banks to the investing public. To the extent that banking resources were thus released for other credit purposes, commercial activities should have benefited. On December 29, 1920, the war issues held by banking institutions for their own account was approximately $2,429,564,000 or about 30 per cent less than the $3,451,184,000 reported as of June 30, 1919.

This indicates an increasing tendency to invest in government securitiesties and shows a growing inclination on the part of investors to take advantage of the favorable yields which can be obtained from the several treasury issues. The government loan organizations calls attention to the fact that not in fifty years have government sold on a basis so favorable to holders.

The government's total interest bearing debt of $23,741,963,380.53 outstanding at the beginning of 1921 is represented as follows:

Liberty Bondsand Victory Notes	$19,511,761,050.00
Certificates of Indebtedness	2,592,811,950.00
War Savings Certificates	756,768,190.53

RECITAL AT HIGH SCHOOL.

James Whitcomb Riley Interpreter in Costume May 6.

A James Whitcomb Riley recital will be presented in costume, under the auspices of the High School Troop of Girl Scouts, by Mayme English Lillotte at the high school auditorium May 6. There also will be a matinee performance for grammar school children. Mayme English-Lillotte is heralded as an artist of the first rank, passing successively and successfully from student, reader, department head in the country's foremost dramatic schools and the stage in company with stars of the first magnitude. Said one New York newspaper critic. "Not the stock variety of reader—rather one who draws her material from the intensely human sources, one who brings a lump in your throat one moment and next fills your eyes with tears of laughter, yet leaves you at the end of her program feeling you have heard something constructive and altogether worth while."

Miss Lillotte is also said to be the ablest interpreter of the beloved poet, James Whitcomb Riley. Not only has her work entertaining value but is also highly educational.

Lost Sunday Dinner by Mistake.

Changing cars in midseason ended as disastrously for a real estate dealer as changing horses in midstream. The dealer has ridden for several years in a car of rather ancient vintage. Recently he bought a new car of the same make.

Saturday night he drove his new car to the city market. He parked it beside an old car. He bought a bushel of apples, a big roast and a week's supply of vegetables.

Probably it was force of habit, his friends say in explaining the consequences. He placed his purchases in the old car. Then he returned to the stall to add further to his supply. On returning he discovered his mistake. The old car had been driven away, carrying his Sunday dinner and his week's supply of vegetables.—Kansas City Star.

TEACH WOMEN HOUSEKEEPING

Congress Asked to Provide for Home Economics Course.

COME UP AT NEXT SESSION

Is Not an Expensive Measure and Is of Far-reaching Importance—Urged by Dozen Big National Woman's Organizations and any Number of State Organizations—Congressional Committee Convinced of Worthiness of Cause.

Whether soggy biscuits, unbalanced dinners and bad bargains can be legislated out of existence is a question which the last congress smiled and frowned over and finally passed to its successor. The committee that investigated the need for federal assistance to train housewives was readily convinced of the worthiness of the cause. But the bill providing a government fund for home economics courses got pushed aside in the final rush of imperatively important legislation, writes Frederic J. Haskin in the Chicago News.

The bill is not lost, however. It is sure to come up in the next congress, possibly at the extra session. It is not an expensive measure as expenditures go in congress, but it is a bill of far-reaching importance and one that offers an opportunity to every state and it is being urged by a dozen big national woman's organizations and any number of state organizations.

The foundation for the home economics bill is the old story—for several of them:

Twenty-six million of the 50,000,000 women and girls in the United States keep house, and as homemakers these 26,000,000 women constitute the largest class of workers in the country. It is further estimated that more than nine-tenths of women keep house at some time in their lives.

More than 90 per cent of the buying for the home is done by women.

Nutritive food in the proper proportions, sanitary home conditions, economy in the home, are the basis of America's, or any country's health, wealth and happiness.

But there is a negative fact of equal importance: The housewife who is so largely responsible for the American digestion and bank account is for the most part an unskilled laborer, whereas with training she might properly class her work among the professions.

Homes Badly Run.

The home has been called the most costly institution in America, and it might equally well be called the most inefficient. It is largely because of unfortunate home conditions that we have with us juvenile delinquency, malnutrition, indigestion, the grouchy business man and other "problems."

Up to now it has been taken for granted that the homemaker got adequate training as a girl in her parents' home, or, failing that, she picked up housekeeping naturally, by experience. If a girl elected to delve into the technical business of calories and budgets at school, well and good. She was merely rounding out her education with extra accomplishments.

This idea of how housekeepers should be made is losing credence, partly because housekeeping has become a recognized field for science, and partly because the home school of household training is practically extinct.

Rarely is a girl given the thorough training in household affairs by her mother that the daughter of the house a generation or two back received. Mother is generally too busy getting through with housework so as to make time for clubs and politics, and daughter's well meaning offers to help make the pies are likely to be met with distracted "I can do it while I'm showing you how."

Girls themselves, we are told, are more interested in home economics now than they have been for several years. Girls by the thousands have deserted the kitchen range for the factory bench, and if they have to keep the home fires burning too, they pick up something sketchy on the way home and eke out the meal with canned goods and raw fruits.

Women Want to Learn.

The greater concern over housekeeping now being displayed is attributed to the wave of economy and the reduction of wages. It is not, however, a return to the old housekeeper's viewpoint of before the war. Women are beginning to accept what home economics experts have so long and patiently explained—that housework need not be drudgery, that the principles of balanced meals can be grasped by any woman who will take time to study them, and, in general, that home economics is not a subject limited to college text books, but that it is simply housework by methods tested by experts.

The bill which extends the opportunity for women and girls to become competent housekeepers provides $200,000 at the start, to be divided among the states according to population. To receive its share of the money, whatever it may be, each state has to put up a similar sum to be used for the same purpose. With the money teachers are to be engaged to take charge of classes and girls are to be trained as home economics teachers. The bill stipulates that these student teachers must be given a four-year course. This is intended to insure a high standard in teachers provided for the vocational classes.

The classes which the states would establish under the home economics bill would be for girls and women who expect to take up housekeeping or are already engaged in it. This includes girls who are in school; women who work in the day and still keep house or plan to do so; domestic paid workers who want more training, and housekeepers who feel that they can still learn something about their work.

The bill definitely states that at least one-third of the sum alloted to the state must be applied to part-time schools or evening classes for girls and women more than fourteen years of age.

Each state or school would plan its own course, according to teachers available and the demand for subjects. In such courses there is practically always a class in the art of cooking. Another important subject for the courses would be dietetics, which deals with the food requirements of the body and how to satisfy them, making allowances for the differences in individuals.

Teach Women Buying.

Every complete course in home economics nowadays includes a study of buying—clothes, food, house furnishings. It is estimated that women buy practically all of the dry goods and women's and children's clothing required for family consumption, nearly nine-tenths of the food, one-half of the household hardware and furnishings and perhaps one-tenth of the men's clothing.

One woman who appeared before the house education committee rehearsed these figures and added: "No business man would be willing to turn over to an absolutely untrained buyer the funds which he expects to invest in wool, wood, iron and steel for his factory, and yet that is what a very large percentage of our men do with that portion of their incomes which covers household expenditures, and these expenditures frequently absorb practically the whole income."

Most of the home buying is guided by an instinct for values which is supposed to be an infallible feminine trait. Unfortunately, sometimes mother gets cheated and very often sister does, merely from not knowing how to tell wool from cotton, or not understanding the psychology of bargain counters, or because she failed to note that the storekeeper was weighing his thumb with the sugar while he inquired solicitously about the family health. Intelligent buying is one of the least understood branches of housekeeping.

Closely allied with the technique of spending money is the art of keeping a family budget and apportioning the income to the best advantage. And then the courses arranged under the provisions of the bill would doubtless include sewing, home nursing, and sanitation.

The time may come when a housekeeper will be expected to know her business as well as anyone else.

OLD INDIAN SQUAW

Woman Says She Saw the Boats of the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

Mary Spadis Shoe-Noo-Wa, an Indian squaw, who claims to be one hundred and twenty years old and now resides in the village of Wisham, four miles north of The Dalles, Ore., claims to have seen the passing of "the great white chiefs" and their boats in the Lewis and Clark expedition of 1805.

Attorney Glenn H. Rank of Portland visited the Indian tribe to which Mary belongs, in connection with a suit which the Indians propose to file against the United States government because of the burning of their village and stampeding of their horses by United States soldiers during the Yakima War of 1855.

Chief Spadis, who is sponsoring the action, according to Rank, speaks excellent English and introduced the attorney to his aged grandmother.

BAD LUCK HITS BOY

Only One of Family Who Escaped Overtaken at Length.

Ill luck has been following the family of Mrs. Forest Elsner of Green Bay, Wis., for a number of months—first, a daughter disappeared from her home; then two children died of scarlet fever. The oldest son lost a hand in a railroad accident. Scalded when a water pipe broke, the father also was a victim. The youngest of the family, and the only one so far to escape injury, was watching a hockey game a few days ago when he was struck in the eye with a hockey stick. As a result the lad probably will lose the sight of his left eye.

Would Remit President's Income Tax.

The first move to exempt the salary of the President from income taxes was made in the house by Representative Pell, Democrat, of New York, whose bill would exempt not only the President's $75,000 salary, but also the salary of the vice president.

Congress Passed 400 Out of 23,000 Bills.

During the Sixty-sixth congress more than 23,000 bills and resolutions were introduced and a few more than 400 passed, according to figures just compiled. In the house 17,283 bills and resolutions were introduced, while the number in the senate was 5,734.

PULMOTOR IS RECHRISTENED

Educator Declares That Life-Saving Machine Should Be "Resuscitator."

Cleveland. — Resuscitator. Pretty hard to spell, isn't it?

It's the word suggested by School Superintendent R. G. Jones to be used in place of "lung motor," "pulmotor" and "breathing machine."

It meets with the approval of Mrs. Virginia D. Green, a school board member; Assistant Superintendent H. D. Bixby and other members of the board of education.

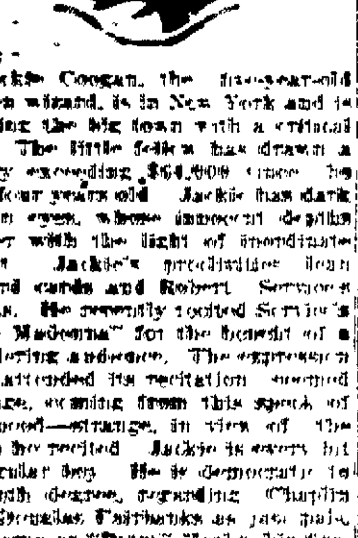

The dictionary defines the word as "one that resuscitates." School board members say it is applicable to a device as well as to a person.

Danish King to Visit Greenland.

Copenhagen, Denmark.—The king of Denmark, who is also king of Iceland, will visit Iceland, Greenland and the Faroe islands in the coming summer with the queen. This will be the first time any Danish king has visited Greenland.

Usually!

When a rogue goes to law, it is generally to keep the law from coming after him.

Jackie Coogan, the five-year-old screen wizard, is in New York and is viewing the big town with a critical eye. The little fellow has drawn a salary exceeding $64,000 since he was four years old. Jackie has dark brown eyes, whose innocent depths glitter with the light of inordinate talent. Jackie's predilection leans toward cards and Robert Service's poems. He recently recited Service's "The Madonna" for the benefit of a wondering audience. The expression that attended its recitation seemed strange, coming from this speck of manhood—strange, in view of the poem he recited. Jackie is every bit a regular boy. He is democratic to the nth degree, regarding Charlie Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks as just pals, the same as "Patsy" Marie, his five-year-old "wife" back in his Hollywood home. The prodigy will spend a month in New York with his father before returning to Los Angeles. He expects to amuse himself during his stay by playing golf in the hotel corridors.

FORECAST NEW PEACE CONFERENCE

Washington Believes This Will Be Outcome of Harding's Foreign Policy and That World's Statesmen Will Gather in United States Capital.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Washington, April 13.—Another peace conference, to be held this time in Washington instead of Paris, was foreshadowed today by officials in commenting upon the pronouncement in President Harding's message against a separate treaty with the Central Powers.

The president's declaration that the United States cannot ignore the old world relationships and settlements already effected, means that America is again to take her seat in the councils of the world, higher officials said, and it was pointed out that the complexity of the problems presented and the sharp conflict of interests make it extremely unlikely that these negotiations could be conducted in any way other than across the conference table.

This does not mean, however, that the attempt to negotiate a treaty satisfactory to all the powers concerned may not first be made through ordinary diplomatic channels. Secretary Hughes has conferred frequently with Ambassadors Geddes, Jusserand, Shidehara and Ricci, and he has talked at length with former Premier Viviani. Presumably he is not unacquainted with the limits to which the countries represented by these statesmen would be willing to go in accepting modifications of the treaty of Versailles. No secret is made of the fact, however, that much ground still remains to be covered.

The United States is going to use the present treaty as a working basis for two reasons, it was made plain today; first, to make sure that American rights and privileges are confirmed, and second, to see that the economic readjustment in which ever man, woman and child of America is deemed to to have an interest, is made fairly and with reasonable expedition.

To accomplish these ends, some contractual relation of all the interested powers is necessary, the administration believes, and the treaty of Versailles, minus the league of nations covenant and other "inadvisable commitments," is expected to prove the readiest means at hand.

The United States is not interested in some of the political problems dealt with in the treaty, and the administration feels that these may very properly be left for the European powers to work out for themselves. But in practically all questions of economic relationship, and especially those pertaining to the economic life of the Central Powers, America is deemed to have a vital interest.

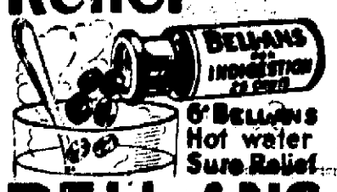

The world cannot get started on its way back to normal conditions it is urged, until the problem of German reparations is definitely settled. Germany has not the slightest reason for presuming that the United States will abet her in any effort to avoid the obligations of war, but, at the same time the administration is convinced that the indemnity should be within the power of Germany to pay.

America is immediately concerned in ending the present impasse in Europe such a way as to permit the world to resume its normal relations. There is no disposition on the part of this government to assume a truculent attitude, but the administration is prepared to exert all its influence in the defense of what it conceives to be the rights and privileges of this nation.

With the decks cleared for action by the ending of the state of war, formal negotiations for a treaty can be opened. The Versailles treaty is now in the hands of President Harding. The simplest procedure, it was suggested today, would be for the president and Secretary Hughes to go over the document, eliminate the league of nations covenant, interpret such reservations and qualifications as they deem necessary, and after consulting senate leaders and sounding out foreign ambassadors present the treaty to the senate.

There is, of course, the possibility that in this manner the treaty can be moulded into such shape as to be acceptable to all—the senate, the allies and to Germany, but officials who watched the long drawn out proceedings at Paris and who have studied the situation in Europe since the pact was signed, believe no such long distance negotiations will succeed. They are convinced there must be another gathering of the statesmen of the world, and they believe Washington is the place for such a gathering.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

Copyright 1921, By HOUGHTON MIFFLIN CO.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. What are the breeding grounds of the migratory mallard and black duck, and of what does their diet consist?

2. In moving a plank on the ground I found the earth beneath full of fishing worms. Is this a sign of spring?

3. What becomes of bees in winter?

Answers In Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Do the majority of animals of the wilds, or domestic animals, die a tragic or a peaceful death?

The wild creatures usually die what might be called a tragic death, falling victim to their natural enemies, or to man. The balance of nature demands that they prey upon each of her, so that small, short-lived animals that breed rapidly, are a food supply to bigger game, which in turn is hunted by man. Among domestic animals disease takes many, food supply for man takes more, and even those that live to old age are often shot to prevent the suffering of old age.

2. How can I protect oak trees around my summer home infested by a dark caterpillar with yellowish stripes running around its body?

Impossible to identify this pest without a specimen, or complete description, since caterpillars exist in so many varieties. The local State or Province Department of Agriculture should be consulted for suggestions on tree spraying. Caterpillars hatching from egg clusters can be checked in winter by cutting off and burning infested twigs. A plentiful bird population is the best natural help in keeping trees free from worms.

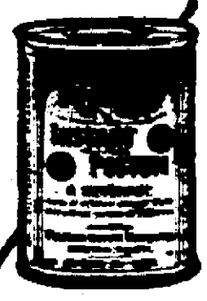

3. What American birds as a class sing sweetly at twilight?

The veery, and indeed all our thrushes, have the nightingale's habit of singing in the twilight. Walk out toward the forest in the warm twilight of a June day, and when fifty yards distant you will hear their soft reverberating notes rising from a dozen different throats. The soft, mellow flute of the veery fills a place in the chorus of the woods that the song of the vesper sparrow fills in the chorus of the fields.

Should Get Victory Medals.

Emphasizing the fact that the Victory Medal for those who fought in the World War should be proudly cherished by recipients, Colonel F. W. Galbraith, national commander of the American Legion, has issued a statement urging all ex-service men to apply for this award. Colonel Galbraith points out that these medals are a badge of honorable service and should appeal not only to ex-soldiers, but to their relatives and friends as well.

FREEMAN WANT ADS. BRING RESULTS

SOVIETS DRIFT TOWARD SANITY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Riga, April 13.—It becomes daily more apparent that there has been a great modification in the internal economic policy of the Russian soviets.

Moscow despatches show that village life has been practically restored to its pre-revolution status. A decree promulgated by Lenine authorizes the re-establishment of the cooperative societies in Russia and invites them to aid the soviet government which they have hitherto opposed.

The cooperatives, who have maintained organizations in England, France and Germany are now discussing the question whether they will accept Lenine's invitation.

The first modification was effected three weeks ago when the soviet premier permitted the resumption of free trade between peasants and working men and abolished speculation in grain. He also permitted peasants to hold their land for nine years, rescinding the order for land re-distribution at this time. His recognition of the cooperative societies is regarded as an important step toward resumption of trade with the non-soviet countries. Other decrees issued at Moscow abolish food speculation in the cities and offer an incentive to the people to "go back to the land" and work the farms.

FLATBUSH.

Flatbush, April 13.—There are to be meetings on Friday in the interest of the progress campaign of the Reformed Church that will be attractive to all who are interested in Christian work. Friday afternoon at 2:30, in the First Dutch Church: evening meeting, with illustrated lecture by Dr. Lemington, in the Fair Street Church. Dr. W. J. Chamberlain will report on his world wide trip.

NEAR EAST MISERY'S ABODE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 13.—"One woman had carried her mother on her back for 15 miles."

This concludes a cablegram to the American Near East relief committee from its director in Constantinople, H. C. Jacquith, of Darien, Conn., describing the conditions back of the Greek fighting lines in the Brousa-Ismid sector after the recent Turkish victory.

"Have had to shut the door on crowds of refugees arriving in Brousa," says the message and adds that the request of Miss Mary L. Graffam, of Maine, who is in charge of relief for widows and orphans at Sivas, Anatolia, for $10,000 to relieve suffering there had to be turned down, because compliance with it would have necessitated turning our preparations here into the street. Then follows this graphic picture of the situation:

"Yesterday two thousand farmers and artisans and women rushed into Ismid without bag or baggage from seven nearby villages. The American Near East relief immediately established soup line and cared for 750. All those were also furnished with blankets."

High School P. T. A.

The High School Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular April meeting at the high school this evening. There will be short talks by members of the faculty and Dr. Baragwanath will give an address. A social hour will follow the meeting and refreshments will be served. All parents and high school teachers are particularly urged to be present.

There is fine intelligence, too, and the whole happy history of dog character is enriched by new instances of noble acts."

THOUSANDS SEE YANKEES START

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 13.—"Fair and warmer" veterans of many an opening day took part in the opening of the baseball season here today between the Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics.

When Mayor Hylan to toss out the first ball and a crowd of more than 35,000 fans on hand, Miller Huggins's 1921 entry in the American League pennant race went into action with the brightest prospects of any New York American League club in baseball history.

Carl Mays, doughty underhand pitcher, was scheduled to pitch for the Yanks with Wallie Shang, late of Boston and the Athletics, on the receiving end.

Connie Mack, was expected to send Scott Perry, his brilliant speedball pitcher, against Mays. Perkins was scheduled to catch for Philadelphia.

In expectation of a monster crowd at the Polo Grounds the Yankee management announced that the gates would open at 12:30 o'clock.

All Wrong.

The feller seemed dismayed
As he stood there and surveyed
Some bits of broken bottle on the walk;
From his eye he brushed a tear,
So we undertook to cheer
His gloomy heart with optimistic talk.
"Friend, there is no use to cry.
Over spilt milk—wipe your eye,"
We told him, but the poor man only sighed
What you say is very true,
It's a foolish thing to do—
But it wasn't milk my dear sir," he replied.

A feller's position in this world makes a wonderful lot of difference. An ex-bricklayer, who social standing was nil a few years ago, became a chiropractor, and now he's got a place on the top layer of society in his home town.

Who is the guy Herpicide? asks a reader. Gosh, we thought everybody knew that. He's the God of Saving.

Harry M. Lynch, in the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune, exults thus:
Motor cars are coming down,
Coming down, coming down;
Motor cars are coming down,
My fair lady!
Now he's got us doin' it:
We'll buy a 4d and keep to the right
Keep to the right, keep to the right;
We'll buy a 4d and keep to the right
We'll join the flivvering army.

Nowadays when you hear two men conferring in stage whispers about a case, it's a conservative wager that they don't mean a lawsuit.

The greatest need of the world today is humility. Hence, whenever we feel ourself growing a bit cocky over our colyumistic prowess we shoot one of our germs to a competitor who chucks it into the ash can, thus restoring our equilibrium.

Get An Eye Full.

Some of these pious looking fellows don't mean as much as they pretend to mean, in their argument about low necks and short skirts. You will always notice that they are close enough to get an eye full.

Cheer up! You don't have to worry about your income tax for another year.

Electric Air Purifier.

How many places there are where the natural air circulation is inadequate! Restaurants, for instance! How often one enters them with a wee bit of appetite, only to have that wee bit reduced to none at all, by the close and stuffy atmosphere of the place. Not only that, but the cooking odors are all too apparent. In other words, the place is so "smelly" that appetite quickens instead of being whetted, and even though the food is good, the appetite is lacking. Is there any remedy for the close and stuffy conditions of so many restaurants?

There is the electric air purifier that costs no more to operate than an electric fan, and it removes the impurities and approximates outdoor conditions, so there is a pleasant, stimulating thing in the atmosphere. It is valuable in kitchens, offices, basements, smoking rooms and theatres—wherever the air conditions are apt to be bad and inadequate.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

More money should be spent for fruits, vegetables and milk and less for "spring tonics."

What's a vacation, asks the farm woman? Seven nights of them year-in and year-out never have one.

Actions speak louder than words; therefore criticise by creating new standards, not by finding fault with old ones.

Paint and paper help a lot in sprucing up a home in the spring. Some folks have found that even hanging the paper is not as difficult as it seemed.

Dont despair if the meat seems tough when you put it over to cook; a small amount of vinegar or lemon juice softens the fibers and makes them more tender.

System in doing housework is just as important as good equipment; the housekeeper whose work "is never done" is usually the one who never stops to plan her work.

With the time at hand when mothers must think of "graduating dresses," it is well to remember that "simplicity is not plainness, stupidity, nor poverty, but the very foundation of beauty and refinement."

And a most important part of it—the right to choose what you buy—was bestowed upon you by advertising.

Advertising is as much a part of today's life as electricity, antiseptic surgery or motor traction. It is the system whereby a man who has something to sell tells about it to those who do or should use it. For no one can want anything until he knows of its existence.

Advertising is the way by which you are told why you should have certain goods and how to identify those goods. So the advertisements you find in this newspaper make up a catalog of needed merchandise.

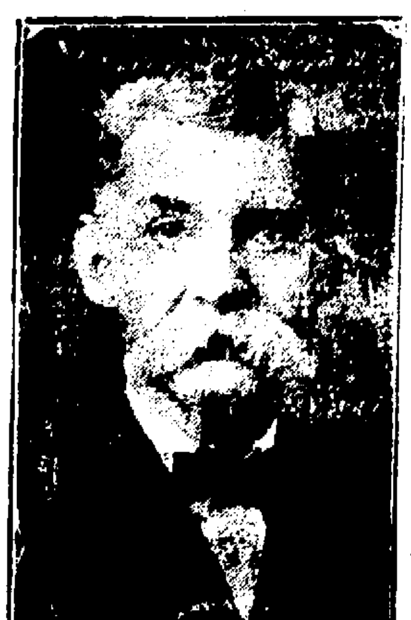

Articles of all kinds and for all purposes are presented in a pleasant way through the medium of type and pictures. The outstanding requirements of every member of the family are met by offers of good merchandise of proved value.

ABRAM PARSELL 85 YEARS OLD

Veteran Riverman Celebrated Birthday on Tuesday—Had Traveled 1,650,000 Miles on Hudson River During 60 Years' Service

ABRAM PARSELL.

Abram Parsell, one of the best known rivermen who ever navigated the Hudson river, celebrated his 85th birthday Tuesday at his home in Port Ewen. During his sixty years of service on the river it is estimated that he has traveled about 1,650,000 miles, or a distance equal to 66 times the circumference of the earth.

Mr. Parsell, the dean of the marine engineers of the Hudson river, was born at Esopus April 12, 1836. He was in active service for over three score years. He first started work on the river at fifteen years of age. On July 3, 1853, he took the position of fireman on the steamer James Madison, which was then towing coal boats and barges from Kingston to New York. The Madison at that time carried one boiler on her deck and was owned by the late Major Thomas Cornell, and it was on this boat in 1854 that the first experiment of burning the fine screenings of pea coal was made. Before that time the fine particles of coal were discarded as useless. Major Cornell was offered a canal boat load at one dollar a ton, and when the Madison returned from her first round trip with this coal in good shape, it rapidly became a standard for the river towboats. Naturally the price per ton increased also.

Mr. Parsell remained on the Madison for eight years, with the exception of a short period during the year 1861. About the first of October, 1861, the Madison broke down and could not be repaired in time to run again that season so Mr. Parsell was transferred to the steamer Madison County, on which he finished the season.

In the fall of 1867 while on the Marshall as chief engineer he was severely scalded about the head and body by the bursting of the lining of a steam chimney which kept him confined to the house for several months. He was totally blind for four weeks. He went back on the Marshall in the spring of 1868 and remained until July, when he left to become chief engineer of the towboat Hudson, owned by Joseph Cornell, towing from Hudson to New York, on which boat he finished that season.

Mr. Parsell was in the old Cornell lines for about sixteen years, during which time he was also employed on the steamers Mohegan, Norwich, Santa Claus and Emerald.

Of those old boats only the Norwich is still in existence and she is spending the remainder of her life in the old Mary Powell berth off Port Ewen. The others were junked many years ago.

Among the many famous old steamers which are recalled by Mr. Parsell are the Thomas Powell, which ran for a number of years on the river. In 1878 she was laid up, and in 1882, while laying at Port Ewen, she was broken up, her engines taken out and stored with the idea of putting them in a new boat, which, however, was never done, and they were eventually disposed of as junk. The Powell was succeeded on the river by the Saratoga, on which Mr. Parsell served for four years as chief engineer.

Mr. Parsell went to Keyport in 1880 and became the superintending engineer of the Cornell line, and remained there until the spring of 1890, when he went back to the Citizens' line as chief engineer of the City of Troy. He remained until [illegible], when [illegible] health failing, he went ashore for four years, again acting as superintendent and inspector. When the Citizens' line became part of the Morse fleet he left the line not to take up active duties again until 1910, when he became superintendent engineer of the Catskill Evening Line, remaining there until early in the spring of 1916, when the Hudson River Day Line assumed the management of the Catskill Line.

Mr. Parsell is a mine of information regarding the history of the Hudson river and its steamboats, and is able to relate many interesting river episodes. His many friends are congratulating him on his 85th birthday.

Babylonian Division of Time.

The Babylonians gave us an hour with 60 minutes. They divided the sun's path into 24 parasangs, a measure equal to about four and a half miles, or the distance a Babylonian soldier could hike in an hour with full pack. The astronomers of that day somehow worked it out that the sun made the same progress. They divided the sun's whole course into 24 parasangs, or 360 degrees, each parasang, or hour, being divided into 60 minutes, and then, having fallen on evil days, they handed the system down to the Greeks, who passed it on.

Free Immigration Means Bread Lines For American Workers, Says Leader

American Federation Secretary Calls for Two-Year Bar to Aliens

By FRANK MORRISON

Secretary, American Federation of Labor

FRANK MORRISON

LITTLE may be written upon the subject of immigration that has not been published. The Government has printed upward of fifty volumes of reports, investigations and hearings.

Millions of dollars have been spent in propaganda in favor of and against the immigrant and immigration. Millions of dollars have been expended in educating the immigrant to fit him for the duties of American citizenship.

Millions of immigrants have been given advantages in education that have not been received by the boys and girls of America. Statistics for the entire United States show, in 1910, 3,606,615 illiterate native Americans. The American labor movement does not oppose the education of immigrants. Rather it favors education for all the people, and it believes that while in no manner restricting instruction to our alien population, greater attention should be given in this regard to our native illiterates, who are just as eager to obtain education as are the immigrants.

In January, 1921, the United States Department of Labor's survey of unemployment showed that there were 3,473,446 fewer workers engaged in industry, than in the previous year. This indicates that over four million workers were idle. At the same time, our immigration officials were reporting over 100,000 immigrants arriving each month.

During the war and for a short time afterward, workers who were retained in industry, and members of their families who were recruited to war industrial service, were enabled to save some of their earnings. Those savings are now being drawn to live upon. Many of those who bought Liberty Bonds have sold them. The false conclusion has been reached by some writers that there is little suffering among our people because this army of the unemployed is still silent. That silence is due to the fact that the people out of work have not entirely exhausted their war-time resources, and the hope that there will be a revival in industry at a near date.

But beyond it, screened by a fog of despair, a bread line is forming. Beyond that, charity is building its soup kitchens. On the horizon of industry there looms the tramp. These are the conditions which the workers of this country see developing out of unrestricted immigration. They can see no justice in crowding them to the wall because in other parts of the world people are being crowded to the wall. They have had little surcease from the hard facts of life. They know that the American worker and the foreigner of yesterday have had to bear greater burdens because of the immigrants' presence. They realize that the overcrowding of industry means restricting of the workers' opportunity to live. They know that when three men are applicants for one job, two of them must give way. "Giving way," translated into human terms, means hardship, suffering, sacrifice to the jobless two.

The workers see no reason why they should suffer and sacrifice because there is oppression of people in foreign lands. Their suffering and their sacrifice does not mitigate the foreign oppression. It goes on and on, extending its influence to this land, narrowing the circle of freedom to the concept of the foreign worker who comes from a land far behind America in its knowledge of liberty and freedom.

Despite the high percentage of illiteracy among native Americans in certain sections of the country, the American workers have established a higher standard of living than that prevailing in any other country. They have developed with that high standard of living a spirit of independence and self-reliance that is reflected in the wonderful progress made by American industry.

The American workers have been educated in the principles of liberty and equality. They believe in these principles; they live up to them. The immigrants of the last twenty years mostly come from nations in which the workers for generations have been imbued with the economic concept of the serf. This concept destroys self-reliance, rejects the spirit of independence, denies the principles of equality and of liberty. This immigrant concept of subjection clashes with the American concept of freedom. By the very force of numbers, the American concept is bound to give way. The immigrant thus transplants the serf life of his native soil to the free life of America.

This is the crushing fact with which the American worker must contend. It is that which inspires the American labor movement to regard the immigration question in its economic relation to the interests of both the American people and the immigrants themselves.

In its broad aspect immigration is caused by bad economic conditions. The emigrant leaves his native land to improve his manner of living. He has been told that in America he shall find happiness. Coming here, he is cast into the mills or the mines. After a time, the mills and the mines are closed. There is a readjustment of wages—lower wages. The American worker, with his higher standard of living, is crowded out. The immigrant, with his lower standard of living, remains — at the lower wages. This process is repeated. In a short time, the American worker passes out of the industry. The standard of living among the workers in that industry is lowered. This exerts a strong influence upon the general standard. All labor in America is adversely affected. Even the immigrant has gained nothing through his immigration, and the American people have lost economic ground that must be recovered.

Were immigration to this country to be stopped for a period—say, two years—the oppressed might abolish oppression in their own lands, and thus remove the necessity of immigrating to the United States.

The American labor movement does not desire to lessen the opportunity of any man or woman to obtain a better life, but in justice to the men and women of America who have helped to build up our free institutions, it cannot quietly submit to the operation of sinister influences which tend to destroy the economic and social standards of the workers of this country.

Note—This article is one of a series by leading authorities who are co-operating in a nation-wide effort to arouse the public to a realization of the need, so strikingly pointed out by Frances A. Kellor in her recent work, "Immigration and the Future," for an adequate official study of all phases of the immigration problem.

AN AUTO CRASH

On Broadway Tuesday Night When Two Automobiles Came Together.

Tuesday evening about 9 o'clock Charles Kochendorfer, agent for Brunswick tires, was driving up the Broadway hill in his Ford runabout in a big touring car owned by Ex-Alderman John A. Fischer, and driven by A. M. Schumaker, was coming down Broadway. Near Mill street the two cars came together. The Ford runabout was badly wrecked but Mr. Kochendorfer escaped uninjured, except for a bad shaking up. The touring car it is said hit the Ford on the side. It was also damaged. No one was hurt. The first show at the Orpheum theatre was just over at the time of the crash and a big crowd gathered at the scene.

Church Entertainment.

The Immanuel mixed choir of the Livingston Street Lutheran Church will give an entertainment on Friday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock in the school rooms connected with the church. A special effort has been made by the committee as well as the director, H. Bruening, in arranging the program, which will be published tomorrow evening. The proceeds of this entertainment will be turned over to the building fund. No tickets will be sold but a silver collection will be taken. Members and friends of the congregation are invited to attend.

Over $100 For Disabled Soldiers.

As the result of the entertainment, "The Minister's Wife's New Bonnet," given by the men and women of the St. James M. E. Church at Woodstock last Friday night, the fine sum of a little over $100 was netted for a fund to be used in the interest of the disabled service men in Ulster County. The committee responsible for the entertainment are indeed to be congratulated.

San Francisco Quake Was in 1906.

The San Francisco earthquake occurred April 18, 1906. The area affected was at least 450 miles in length, extending from Eureka in Humboldt county to the southern extremity of Fresno county, and probably 50 miles wide at most points. The main shock was felt about 5:13 in the morning. It caused the ground to sway sufficiently to wreck buildings, rupture the gas and water mains and even to disturb heavy masonry in places. Minor shocks were recorded at intervals all through the day.

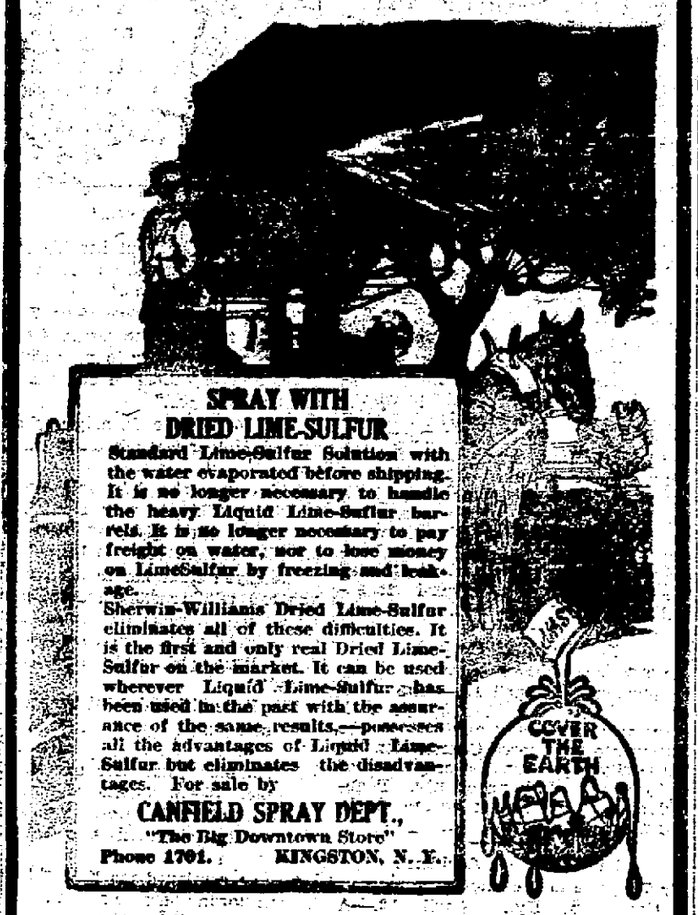

Tahiti Peak Unscaled.

Tahiti's highest peak, Mount Orohena, 7,321 feet in height, still remains unclimbed by any of the present generation, a party recently having failed to reach the summit. Natives declare their ancestors knew the way to the top and claim that there is a [illegible] and a pyramid temple there. The route to the summit, if there was one, has been lost. Overhanging precipices made unscalable by climbing vegetation, slippery with water from … of springs, prevent white men … getting more than half way up.

This young lady, only twenty-one years old, holds the world's record for speed, the mark being 9,644 words in one hour. Her average per minute was 159 words. To type these words the nimble fingers of Miss Stellnitz made 42,948 key strokes in the hour. All of which, you will admit, is quite a record.

KENNEDYS WON GREAT AUDIENCE

Interpretation of Shakespearean Plays at High School Nets Goodly Sum for City Library—Clubwomen's Project Complete Success.

Gifted with rare personal beauty, rich in the possession of a thrilling, heart-stirring, vibrant voice, with a noble woman's intuition and consummate art to make living one of the noblest women of history as well as of Shakespeare's genius, the memory of Edith Wynne Matthison, wife of Charles Rann Kennedy, in her portrayal of Katherine, the first wife of Henry VIII, will prove a lasting inspiration and lofty ideal of womanhood to the hundreds who were in attendance at the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, April 12.

At the same time a new realization of the genuine greatness of Cardinal Woolsey, in that he could wrest from his fallen estate the equally genuine success of honest humility was given that great audience by Charles Rann Kennedy in his portrayal of the unfrocked prelate of King Henry VIII's court.

To add to the accumulated riches of a beautiful memory, there will accrue very considerable material riches for the furtherance of the educational and uplifting work of the Kingston City Library as the result of the entertainment, as the audience was one of the largest ever gathered together in Kingston.

Exactly at 8:15 o'clock Judge A. T. Clearwater stepped onto the platform of the high school auditorium, and was at once greeted with applause. The judge called attention to the fact that it has been frequently said that Kingston is a model town. "Its moral tone is high, as high as that of any city in the United States. Its social tone has always been of the highest, as long as I have been here, which is over two and a half centuries" (laughter and applause), said the judge, "and its business tone we all know from the modest protestations of the Chamber of Commerce is the highest on this planet." (More laughter.) "We have only lacked intellectual stimulus, and this the Federation of Women's Clubs has supplied. Look at this audience, tonight, here to witness impersonations from two great Shakespearean dramas; the world's great romance of the families of the Montagues and the Capulets; and the heart-stirring tragedy of Katherine, the first of the six wives of Henry VIII." In closing Judge Clearwater said he counted it an honor and a pleasure to introduce two such famous interpreters of Shakespeare's characters, the colleague of the late Sir Henry Irving, Mrs. Kennedy, and her almost equally famous husband, Mr. Kennedy.

Prolonged applause greeted both Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, the latter a woman whose beauty of soul illuminated her exceptional physical beauty and who was in every motion and expression as queenly as the woman of royalty whom she impersonated.

The stage setting was Shakespearean in its simplicity, with the rich dark green velour curtains forming the background in front of which the artists sat at either side of a reading table under the soft light of a tall reading lamp.

Mrs. Kennedy announced that she would first give the balcony scene from Romeo and Juliet. That great audience filling all but the back seats in the gallery sat breathless as this immortal love scene, oftimes cloying in its sweetness was lifted to the dignity of the loftiest and deepest sweetest love of man for woman and woman for man, by Mrs. Kennedy, who later was pleased to express to Mrs. Thompson, president of the Federation of Women's Clubs, her appreciation of the audience, every one of whom she said she felt that she reached, and whose sympathetic understanding inspired her to her very best, as she in turn inspired them.

This famous scene was followed by a great burst of applause, expressive of the pent-up emotion of the audience.

The presentation of Henry VIII began with the trial scene (Scene IV) Mr. Kennedy taking the part of both the king and Cardinal Woolsey, whose intriguing wit, choleric temper, and two-facedness were marvelously impersonated. No words can adequately portray the dignity, the regal splendor and fathomless affection of Queen Katherine as Mrs. Kennedy made the ill-starred queen to live before her audience. Scene I, Act III, was next given, wherein Queen Katherine was nothing daunted by the visitation of the wily intriguing cardinals, whom she scorched with the fire of her righteous indignation!

In Scene 2, Mrs. Kennedy took the part of Cromwell truly and admirably while Woolsey, having reached the zenith of his scheming powers fell as he said "lower than Lucifer" until with all his past, Mr. Kennedy still made the audience to pity him in his misfortune.

But the scene that will the longest live in the hearts and minds of those so fortunate as to be included in last night's assembly, was the last scene in the life of Queen Katherine, wherein not even the worst injustice, the most embittering neglect could make of her less a loving, loyal wife and noble woman, whose passing from the scene of her earthly trials brought tears of genuine and deep heartache that one must bid "farewell" to such a queen of women!

With this farewell let the story of Tuesday evening's success as far as the Federation of Women's Clubs is concerned, end, adding but this word, that hereafter, Kingston like Poughkeepsie will need no words of advertising, only the barest announcement of their appearing to welcome the Kennedys with an audience to fill our largest auditorium.

The financial aftermath of the performance will appear in a later issue of The Freeman.

Girls To Entertain.

The girls of the Westminster Guild of the First Presbyterian Church will hold an entertainment and sale this evening in the lecture room. The entertainment will start at 8 o'clock.

AT THE THEATRES

"The Naughty Wife" at Opera House —Bryant Washburn at Keeney's.

The Chicago Stock Company pleased another large audience at the Opera House last evening with their production of "She Walked in Her Sleep." Tonight the company presents "The Naughty Wife," a brilliant comedy by Fred Jackson, the author of La La Lucille. It is the story of a "wife" who just couldn't be happy with her husband and that the other man was her ideal. Thursday afternoon and evening the attraction will be "The Woman in Room 13," the great melodrama. "Wedding Bells," another comedy gem, will be played Friday and on Saturday Mark Swan's laugh festival "Keep It to Yourself" will be offered.

Bryant Washburn in a picture for for spendthrifts, "Burglar Proof," is showing at Keeney's tonight with Lois Wilson, Grace Morse and gorgeous girls galore. Every time he spent a dime, he spent an hour in mourning until he met the vision who shook a wicked hoof in the name of art. Now he's one of the best "prospects," a gold-digger ever struck. A Sunshine comedy with all the famous bathing beauties is also programmed, also the great episode of "The Son of Tarzan." Thursday and Friday Norma Talmadge in "The Woman Gives."

Billie Burke in "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson" at the Auditorium tonight offers a delightful comedy with a wealth of handsome and costly gowns. Elmo Lincoln the delight of the strong men of the city in "The Flaming Disc" is also featured. Tomorrow Eddie Polo in "The King of the Circus."

Persons who carry hip-pocket flasks are now in the same class as the man who carries a pistol or dirk without a permit, according to a statement made by John A. Leach, first deputy police commissioner of New York, who is in charge of the police enforcement of the new state dry laws in New York city. "Anyone carrying liquor" said Deputy Commissioner Leach, "is just as much a violator of the law as one who carries a pistol."

Alecco Arrested Here.

At the request of the Saugerties authorities Policemen Reardon and Healey at 10:15 o'clock Tuesday evening arrested Joseph Alecco on Gill street, near East Union street, and Alecco spent the remainder of the night in the county jail. He is wanted in Saugerties on a charge of grand larceny in the second degree.

MURPHY HELPS BOOST ATHLETICS

Andrew Murphy, Jr., a member of the State Athletic committee of the American Legion, and one of the best all-around athletes ever produced in north-eastern New York, has joined the ranks of those assisting "Father" Mat Pelton, the Albany trainer, in reviving athletics for this section of the country during the coming outdoor season.

In a letter to his old trainer, Murphy says:

"I see that you are again the trail breaker in placing track and field athletics on their former high plane in the capital district. By this time you would probably like to know the writer of these lines. It is none other than your premier miler of 1910-11, Andy Murphy. Now looking back, I am happy in the thoughts of the good old days, especially in the meets of 1910 and our trip to Syracuse in 1911. I see Louis Staver is now going to stage a come-back. More power to him and the rest of the old gang, such as Ginter, Hanley, Willie Carl, Danny Wright, English, Hich, Dwyer and the rest. If you develop the new comers and the same as you did the bunch above mentioned, then the capital district will be heard from.

"I am a member of the State Athletic committee of the American Legion and we intend boosting track athletics this summer, and we would like the cooperation of a man of your wide experience and ability."

In his day, Murphy won in all distances from 100 yards to five miles excepting only the 220 sprint in which he never finished better than third. He is also known throughout the district as a basketball, football and baseball player of ability.

BUD CULLOTON AGAINST GIANTS

Bud Culloton, the local athlete who is one of the pitching stars at Fordham University, pitched the last four innings in the game against the Giants Tuesday afternoon at the Polo Grounds in New York city. The Giants won by a score of 13 to 3. The Giants did some lusty clubbing against McNamara, the other Fordham star, who pitched the five opening stanzas, and the game was safely tucked away before he gave way to Culloton, who distinguished himself by fanning two of the first three Giants to face him. Lee King was the first victim, and Goldie Rapp the other. Later the Giants got to Culloton for enough hits to add a brace of runs in the seventh inning. Three of the four blows registered off Culloton were for extra bases. Slim Sallee twirled for the Giants.

PEACE RESOLUTION RE-INTRODUCED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 13.—Senator Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania today introduced in the senate his resolution declaring an end to the state of war that has existed for four years between the United States and the former Central Powers.

The resolution as re-introduced is almost identical with the one passed by the last congress, and vetoed by former President Wilson. The few textual changes made are minor ones.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Lake Katrine, April 13.—Theodore Brink received word of the death of Dr. Garrett Wychoff of Red Bank, N. J., a former pastor of the Flatbush Reformed Church. Dr. Wychoff had endeared himself to many friends here.

Arthur Irving Keyser, son of Arthur and Rose Lawrence Keyser, died on Tuesday at Rifton, aged 18 years. The funeral will be held from the residence of his grandmother, Mrs. R. C. Lawrence, No. 82 Henry street, Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Interment in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Mrs. Andrew Shultis died from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy, at the home of her son George Shultis on South Partition street, Saugerties, Tuesday morning, leaving a daughter, Mrs. Frank Babcock and two sons, George and James, to survive her. Mrs Shultis was an aged and respected resident of Saugerties for many years.

Emma J., wife of Theodore Keller, died last night. The funeral will be held from the late residence Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock with interment in Wiltwyck cemetery. She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Mabel Keller, Mrs. M. J. Freer and Bessie Keller and one sister, Mrs. Edward Miller, all of this city.

The body of First Class Private James J. Reilly arrived in this city Tuesday afternoon and were taken to the home of his sister, Mrs. Lawrence V. Conlin, at 26 Wilbur avenue, from where the funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock and from the Church of the Holy Name at 10 o'clock, where a solemn high Mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. Military arrangements will be in charge of Company M and the members are requested to appear at the armory in uniform at 8:30 to march to the home of their deceased comrade.

Word has come to Kingston that the funeral services for the late Mrs. C. M. Schoonmaker, formerly of Kingston, the announcement of whose death appeared in Tuesday's Freeman, will take place in New York city at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning. The burial will occur on the arrival of the 2:15 p. m. train from New York city, in the family burial plot at Wiltwyck cemetery. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Leighton Williams, D. D., rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, of which church Mrs Schoonmaker was for so many years a devoted and loyal member.

Through The Freeman word has been received by relatives in this city of the death of J. Benjamin Kerr, which occurred suddenly of heart failure at the Hotel Gresham, Gresham, Oregon, on March 23rd. Mr. Kerr was a former resident of Kingston, a son of the late John W. Kerr, who was sheriff of Ulster county during the years 1871-73, and is survived by one brother, Charles Kerr of Danbury, Conn., and four sisters, Mrs. Fred W. Warren of Pine street, Mrs. William C. DeWitt of Pearl street and Mrs. Mary K. Hoar and Miss Ida I. Kerr who reside at 55 Albany avenue; also a niece, Mrs. Philip DeGarmo of St. James street, and a nephew, Commander J. K. Ross of Montreal, Canada. The news of the death of Mr. Kerr just received was a severe shock to the family, as they had been in correspondence with him each month receiving a letter which arrived about the day of his death, and evidently he was in good health as he never wrote of being ill. He had made his home at the Hotel Gresham where he died, for three years after the death of his wife, and evidently had not informed any of his friends in Oregon of the address of any of his relatives in Kingston, and by reason of this the news of his sudden death was not received sooner by them. He was interred in the cemetery at Gresham, beside his wife. About ten years ago Mr. Kerr visited Kingston, spending a few months with his sisters and renewed old acquaintanceships of his boyhood days.

WAR DEPARTMENT TESTS NEW PLANE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 13.—High officials of the war department have been in conference for several days with the producers of a thirty-passenger carrying aeroplane, which the government may adopt for its air forces, it became known today. The design is now undergoing tests at the bureau of standards.

If final tests are satisfactory, it is stated, the war department is considering construction of a number of planes which will form a battle fleet of the air, capable of long distance flights, heavy armament, and great destructive power.

The machine is the creation of a number of noted American engineers, many of whom helped in the designing of the American wartime air engines.

The plane is said to be the largest ever constructed in this country, and is a rival of the Italian Caproni, although only half the weight of the latter. It is said to travel at the rate of 115 miles an hour with a fuel capacity of 1,500 gallons. The makers say it can make a non-stop cross-country flight in 18½ hours.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 13.—The reductions announced in the price of its products by the United States Steel Corporation was reflected in some selling of the steel shares at the opening of the stock market today, resulting in losses of from fractions to one point in this group. The rest of the list was irregular, with the tendency being to lower figures. Steel Common sold off ½ to 80 and Republic Steel dropped 1 point to 59½. Crucible also sustained a loss of about 1 point while Baldwin and Bethlehem Steel dropped ½. International Paper featured the trading with a further advance of 2½ points to 64½ following the publication of the 1920 earning statement showing earnings far in excess of what had been expected. Mexican Petroleum fell ¾ to 139¾ and Royal Dutch dropped 1¼ to 59¾. Atlantic Gulf lost nearly a point to 37⅛. Studebaker, after losing ¾ and selling at 77¾, rallied to 78⅝. American Sumatra declined fractionally to 74. The coppers were slightly lower.

The speculative elements that had been persistently bearish for so long a time made another drive at the steel industrials during the first hour and was successful in forcing some of those issues down to a new low record for the year. Lackawanna Steel was forced down 1½ to 47½ and Crucible sold at 81¾, a loss of 1⅝. U. S. Steel was well supported and although declining ⅝ to 79⅝, quickly recovered to 80¼. Bethlehem Steel was under pressure, losing 1 point to 53⅝. The copper stocks reflected steady accumulation, Utah Copper being the chief feature of that group and making a gain of ⅞ to 51⅝. International Paper, after its advance to 64½, reacted to 63. The rails with the exception of Pennsylvania, showed a heavy tone.

FRENCH FIND GOOD IN MESSAGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, April 13.—While comment in the leading Paris journals is still sparse, it is already apparent that the keynote of French sentiment regarding President Harding's message to Congress is that it more than fulfills the expectations of the French government and people.

Officials did not conceal their satisfaction over the declarations concerning "just reparations," which is the subject uppermost in all French minds. They also hail Mr. Harding's statement concerning Germany's responsibility for the war and that a separate peace between America and Germany must not be misconstrued.

Pertinax, who is the only one commenting at length this morning, says the speech sounds the death knell of the league of nations.

"France has wasted enough time over the league," he adds, "and over mistaken policies toward America. It is time to remedy the situation and to send to Washington men who are capable of clarifying the situation."

No General Amnesty Yet.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 13.—President Harding indicated strongly today that he will take no action on general amnesty for political prisoners until the United States is formally at peace with the Central Powers.

The president received a delegation, which made a plea for general amnesty, but gave the strong indication that he contemplates no action along this line at this time and that he would first await a declaration of the end of the state of war before moving with regard to so-called political prisoners.

ANYWAY, PROPELLER IS GONE

Dispute Now Is Whether It Was Torn, Bitten, or Blown Off, But It Is Missing.

What happened to the starboard propeller of the United Fruit liner Calamares, recently arrived at New York from Central American ports and Havana, puzzled her skipper, officers and passengers, who discussed the mystery since the ship threw a fit on the afternoon of Wednesday, January 19, in the placid Caribbean and started wabbling, heaving, pitching, tossing, rolling and doing other things that no healthy ship does all at the same time.

Capt. Harry Spencer stopped the liner and the chief engineer examined the starboard propeller. He found that one of the blades had been torn, bitten or blown off. Some surmised that a sea serpent might have nibbled at the propeller and others said outright there was no doubt a steel-eating Caribbean shark had bitten off the blade.

Captain Spencer derided these theories, declaring the blade had been blown off by the force of a subaqueous earthquake, as the Calamares began rocking violently a moment after the mysterious force was first felt. And there the matter rests.

"Lodestone."

This magnetic oxide of iron, or lodestone, as it is called, was first found in Magnesia, in Asia Minor, the name magnet being derived from this circumstance. The name lodestone, which is applied to this natural magnet, was given on account of its being used when suspended as a guiding or leading stone, from the old Saxon word, "laedan," to lead. Lodestone or magnetic oxide of iron, is very abundant in nature, especially in Sweden and Norway, where it is worked as an iron ore and furnishes the best quality of iron. It is also found in Canada.

THE LITTLE GIRL.

Mr. Wood Elf and the boy and girl heard someone crying. They hurried along in the deep passes between two rows of small mountains.

Mother Gossip hurried along, too. She was hoping to find out enough to make a good gossipy story. Her lips were curling, it seemed, more than ever. And her eyes looked hard and like sharp, bright bits of steel.

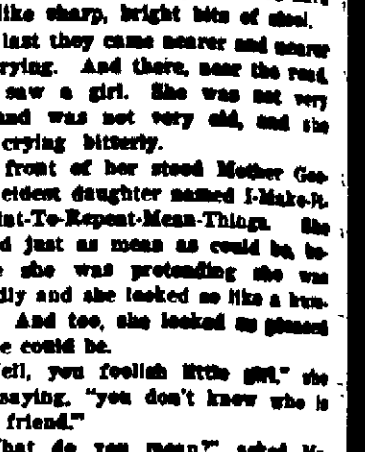

At last they came nearer and nearer the crying. And there, near the road, they saw a girl. She was not very big and was not very old, and she was crying bitterly.

In front of her stood Mother Gossip's eldest daughter named I-Make-It-A-Point-To-Repeat-Mean-Things. She looked just as mean as could be, because she was pretending she was friendly and she looked so like a humbug! And too, she looked so pleased as she could be.

"Well, you foolish little girl," she was saying, "you don't know who is your friend."

"What do you mean?" asked Mr. Wood Elf. "I never knew you could be a friend to anyone."

"Of course I'm her friend," said I - Make - It - A - Point - To - Repeat - Mean-Things. "I told her that I had heard something about her, but that I didn't believe it, and that I stood up for her like a friend."

"You Wretch."

"Oh, you wretch," shouted Mr. Wood Elf. "If there is one person I hate more than any other in your abominable and objectionable and horrible family, it is you."

"I tried to do a friendly act," answered Mother Gossip's eldest daughter.

"Of course she did," said Mother Gossip. "This is very nice. And don't sob, little girl, but come, tell me all about it. Confide in me."

"Yes, you want her to tell you, so you can tell her story and add to it all around. I won't let you do that," said Mr. Wood Elf. "I'll see to that. Now, little girl, what really happened?"

The little girl had dried her eyes.

"I met this young lady," she said. "I mean, this old lady," for Mother Gossip's eldest daughter now looked very old. She was quite old, for that matter, and Mother Gossip's children look pretty old after they've been seen for a time.

"And," continued the little girl, after swallowing hard so as not to start crying again, "she told me something which wasn't true about me which someone had said. And oh, I felt dreadful. She said she was telling it to me for my own good. She said she was my friend and that she had stood up for me. But oh, I'm so unhappy to think such a thing was said about me."

"Yes," said Mr. Wood Elf. "of course you were, but you're going to cheer up now and we're all going to have a moonlight supper tonight away from this horrible family. My two companions are tired of them already. They never were fond of such a family, not even of the ones they'd met and didn't know by name. And as for the Tattle-Tale Twins—well, they'd be enemies with my companions if they knew each other forever.

"I just have a few words to say to Miss I - Make - It - A - Point - To - Repeat-Mean-Things, and then we'll be off.

"You know," he continued, pointing his finger straight at Mother Gossip's daughter, "there is no excuse for you, not a scrap.

"You thought you were making yourself out to be very fine when you said you had stood up for her, and that you were telling it to her for her own good.

"You thought it made you seem so noble to say you stood up for her, didn't you? I've my doubts about you standing up for her in the first place, but that isn't the important thing. Anyone who is a friend will stand up for his friend or her friend without saying so. It is quite unnecessary, quite. And no person is a friend who repeats mean things.

"I like the person who makes the mean speeches even better than I do the one who repeats them."

They left then for happier adventures.

Black Note Ink a Secret.

The ink used in printing the Bank of England note is of a peculiar blackness which no other ink can imitate. It is made by a secret process from charred husks of grapes and a secret oil.

JUST THE JOLT HE NEEDED

School-Teacher's Rebuke Awoke Careless Boy to the Recognition of His Mental Powers.

Sir Harvey Beacon, a well-known scientist, as a boy was the despair of his teachers, and as indifferent to his lessons as it was possible to be and not fail altogether. Like many another great brain his needed a jolt to set it into its true speed. His jolt came thus: He was asked to write something about the crab. His idea of a composition was to make it as brief as possible. The one requested appeared like this: "The crab is a red fish that walks backward."

The weary teacher read it and then wrote on the bottom: "I like the style, the brevity and the analysis of the subject. The crab is not red, it is not a fish, and it does not walk backward. Otherwise your composition is correct."

Sir Harvey accepted the rebuke in silence, but from that day a change came over him, and a few years later he was the leader in every class he entered.

WORLD'S LARGEST BUZZ SAWS

Machinery Especially Constructed for Cutting Enormous Cedars Found on Pacific Coast.

The largest buzz saws in the world were recently installed on the Pacific coast to cut the enormous cedars of that region. They are nine feet high, and in the rims are inserted 190 detachable teeth, which can be easily replaced if broken. Each saw started out as an ingot weighing 1,140 pounds, and after heating, rolling and trimming, each weighed 795 pounds. Tremendous difficulties attend the making of such huge implements of industry. The ingot must be fashioned into a plate absolutely straight and true. The saws in operation attain a speed of 130 miles an hour, a bit of statistics hinting at the revolution in sawmill methods since modern demand outstripped old-fashioned means of supply. Circular saws have been in use for over a century, being of English invention, but the insertible teeth was the development of an American idea.

MAY SEE "HALF MOON" AGAIN.

The members of the Universal Netherland league, a Dutch-American social organization, are planning some action to have the replica of the "Half Moon," in the original of which Hendrick Hudson explored the Hudson river, removed from its present obscurity to a location commensurate with its historic interest.

This reminder of the early Dutch explorer was presented to New York by the Dutch government on the occasion of the Hudson-Fulton celebration in 1909, and it was then thought that it would be placed in one of the lakes of Central park, instead of which, however, it has been practically hidden in Popopo creek, near Bear mountain.

NOVEL DONKEY.

A successful attempt has been made at the London zoo to produce a new type by crossing a well-bred English donkey with a Tibetan wild ass of Kiang, which is a distinct species. The Kiang is a powerful animal of a reddish-brown hue, and the foal takes after its sire in color, instead of being stone grey like its dam. If this hybrid form becomes firmly established, it will tend to brighten the English seaside resorts in summer time. The familiar drab hue which has been so long in fashion leans rather to the side of monotony.

FIRST AVIATION OPERA.

To Italy goes the honor of producing the first aviation opera. It is called "Airman Dro," and is by Pratella. It is a work of the Futurist school, although the critic of the Corriere della Sera who attended the premiere in Lugo reports that the music is not unduly eccentric. The most conspicuous Futurist note is the noise of the airplane's engines which is represented by a motorcycle in the wings. It is allowed to "race" wildly through the last act.—Christian Science Monitor.

AN APPEAL.

"Colonel, I understand you are a connoisseur in drinkables."

"I may say I am."

"Well, what is this stuff, hair tonic or cologne?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

NOT ALL GLOOM IN INCOME TAX

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, April 13.—The open season for filing New York State Income Tax returns will expire this week, Friday, and in the closing rush of the 1920 collection period many humorous sidelights develop daily bearing on the "outcome of the income."

Only yesterday, State Comptroller James A. Wendell beamed with pleasure when he found in his morning mail a bulky package.

"Thousands of dollars in currency for the state," he said with a grin.

He carefully opened the envelope, but instead of a bunch of green backs rolling out, his eye rested on an old soiled shirt, pinned to the collar band of which was a note from a Buffalo taxpayer reading, "Enclosed please find notice of additional assessment of my 1919 state income tax. I am giving you everything I have left. May Heaven help me now."

District Director Niles R. Becker tells of an attractive smartly gowned young woman who sauntered into the New York office in the Equitable Building a day or two ago, and walking over to the young man in charge of the distribution of income tax forms, smiled on him and said sweetly:

"Could you oblige me with one of your very latest 1920 forms?"

"What kind of a form do you prefer Madam—a long form or a short form?" inquired the clerk.

"I really don't know," she answered blushingly, "but as an expert on forms, look me over kid and give me your best judgment."

The man with a grouch takes his "pen in hand" once in a while as this sample mailed to the bureau by a resident of New Jersey who objected to paying a tax on income derived within New York state, indicates:

"I enclose you your 'pound of flesh in the form of my check herewith. I do this under protest and it must be understood that I waive none of my rights or privileges to enter suit against the State of New York. I am rather astonished that you have not also placed the matter with the adjutant general with a threat of the whole National Guard and a firing squad at the end of the game. That would be quite in keeping with the bullying policy of your 'Empire' State."

In the mass of anonymous communications reaching the bureau almost daily urging officials to investigate tax dodgers, the following received yesterday indicates that Bolshevists have not been entirely suppressed in New York city:

"I wish to hereby let you know that at a Bolshevik meeting in New York city last night that (naming the woman) said: 'To H-ll with the United States. I am not going to pay a cent income tax of any kind. I'll see them all to H-ll first.' The speaker said she got $40 every week in a shirtwaist factory, and I thought it my duty to let you know."

Questions asked about proper deductions and depreciation in making out income tax returns are staggering even to bureau experts. Here is an example:

"Let me know if I should charge depreciation on my wife's good looks. We grow old you know, and sometimes her kisses cost me money. May I take out such sums as expenses? Can you also tell me if the state collects income tax on regular 'hooich' sold in New York city for from $8 to $20 a bottle and 75c to $1 a drink. Surely there must be a profit in hootch at such fancy prices."

That some otherwise model husbands are guilty of keeping from friend wife certain accurate pay envelope information is suspected from this letter which has the state comptroller guessing:

"Please advise me by return mail the total amount of my husband's income for 1920. I have been his wife for seventeen long years and I feel I am entitled even at this late day to know just how much he makes a year."

Plans have been completed for commencing investigation work on the morning of April 18th. During 1920 more than 73,000 investigations were made. Over 14,500 delinquents were discovered of which better than 6,000 were in greater New York. The contributors included a second hand clothing store keeper on the lower East Side, who when pressed to pay his income tax flashed a city tax receipt on the investigator and with contempt oozing from every pore inquired:

"What's the matter, have them hungry politicians up in Albany run out of money again?"
